

ALICE LEE

THURS., FEB. 12

On her lush, atmospheric new CD The Art of Forgetting, the Williamsburg soul siren hitches eerie and sensual guitar and keys to a hypnotic downtempo beat. Live, she recreates the ambience with the aid of a laptop. Her lyrics get evil sometimes, pretty much what you'd expect from a girl who learned to sing in a cemetery. Café 111, 111 Court St. (betw. State & Schermerhorn Sts.), Brooklyn Heights, 718-858-2806, 8, free.

VOICE CHOICES DECEMBER 22-28, 2004

ALICE LEE + CHARADES

Pete's Candy Store, 709 Lorimer St, Bklyn,
718.302.3770

A pub quiz precedes this engaging—and cheap!—show from Lee, an ingénue whose Art of Forgetting pours Norah Jones syrup over a Portishead sundae. She's followed by Charades, who I wish were the Finnish surf-rock instrumental combo of the same name. At 10. $ MCCOMBS
